COMMENCEMENT

Commencement at the North Carolina College was ushered in this year on the night of Thursday, May 27th, by the "farewell banquet" of the Senior Class. This was held at the O. Henry Hotel between the hours of six and ten o'clock, and was attended by eighty-four seniors, Dr. J. I. Foust and Miss Laura Coit. Mary Winn Abernathy, the class president, acted as toastmistress, and many delightful spontaneous toasts were given. The evening closed with the singing of their class song. The class colors, lavender and white, were carried out in the decorations and delicious course dinner served by the hotel management.

The class dinner was followed by the farewell "Tree Exercises" on Friday night at eight-thirty on the front campus of the college. Lights were arranged in the trees, making an unusually effective setting for the fairy masque which the exercises represented. The characters in the masque were the eighty-four class members and the Queen of the Fairies, who presided over the good of the world into which 1920 was about to enter; the Spirit of the Tree, who was to guide the class members after their departure; the Spirit of 1920, with her handmaidens, Love, Honor, Loyalty and Service; two Messengers, an Icicle and a Trumpet Flower; the Queen's attendants; Violets, other flowers, and chorus. Soft violin music was heard throughout the exercises. The dances, "Pipes of Pan," the Violet's dance, and the class song at the close, were all pleasing features, and showed much thought and talent.

Saturday, May 29th, was designated "Alumnae Day" at the college. Following the call of their college president and secretary, and the thousands of little "stickers" saying, "Meet at the flag pole commencement," the alumnae and former students came back in great numbers for commencement. Interesting plans had been worked out and the most elaborate program of the kind ever held at the college was carried out. Alumnae headquarters were arranged in Students' Building, where committees aided in directing and placing the returning alumnae.

The first event of the morning was the business session which lasted from ten to one. This was presided over by Mrs. Dudley D. Carroll, president of the Alumnae and Former Students' Association, and a great deal of business was transacted. The whole-time secretary, Ethel Bollinger, gave an interesting and comprehensive report of her year's work and a vote of thanks was extended her by the Association. Dr. Julius I. Foust also addressed the meeting, and Miss Harriet Elliott made announcements concerning the school of citizenship which is to be held at the college this summer. The class of 1920 was received into the Association. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Miss Laura Coit; vice-president, Miss Minnie Jamison; board members for three years, Mrs. Julius Cone, Miss Jane Summerell and Miss Eleanor Watson; auditing committee, Misses Mary Tennent, Joy Briggs and Martha Winfield.

The second event, the garden party, took place on the front campus Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. The beautiful natural setting proved most effective for the party. Refreshing punch was served from an improvised summer house, artistically decorated with pink rambler roses. The "granddaughters of the college," in dainty organdie frocks, served, and the college glee club furnished the music. The afternoon proved enjoyable in every respect for the alumnae and former students who were at the gathering.

The alumnae dinner at six o'clock was attended by about five hundred people. Mrs. Carroll presided over the dinner, welcoming the guests and announcing the speakers of the evening. Mrs. Gertrude Bagby Creasy, of Wilmington, toasted the past of the college; Dr. Foust spoke on the educational situation of the present; and Miss Clara Byrd toasted the future. Classes sitting together sang class songs, and the dinner closed with the singing of the college song. The college dining hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, candelabra and pretty baskets filled with yellow flowers being used together very artistically.

Owing to the late hour, the alumnae parade, which was to have taken place right after the dinner, was postponed. In this parade were to have been all graduates and former students of the college, arranged according to classes, the "granddaughters" of the college and even the little folks who were likewise "grandchildren."

"Park Night," arranged by the students of the college for the entertainment of the visitors, was held in the outdoor theater at eight-thirty Saturday night. The entertainment symbolized the spirit of the college, Lena Kernodle having been elected to represent the spirit of service, the college motto; Mary Sue Brown represented the freshman class; May McCarr, sophomore; Gladys Wells, junior; and Mary Bynum Paris, senior; Rachel Clifford, Adelpian Literary Society; Hazel West, Cornelian; Vera Paschal, Dikean; Prof. E. J. Forney, Faculty, and Miss Laura Coit, the Alumnae. Julia Cherry, as Love, presented the speakers in turn. Five girls, representing the college, gave very effective dances, and the chorus was composed of members of all classes. Every one voted the innovation a very successful feature of Alumnae Day and a most fitting close.

Sunday morning at eleven o'clock Dr. John R. Stratton, D. D., pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, New York City, preached the Baccalaureate Sermon, and Dr. Kerr Boyce Tupper, of Philadelphia, preached the Y. W. C. A. farewell sermon in the open-air theatre in the park Sun day evening.

Monday, May 31st, was characterized by many activities. At nine-thirty the three societies met to install their new officers and close the work of the year. Before the close of the meetings, tableaux were given and refreshments served in honor of the many visiting alumnae and faculty. Society officers installed were: Adelpian—Elizabeth I. Smith, Greensboro, president; Pauline Green, vice-president; Susie West, recording secretary; Julia May Southerland, corresponding secretary; Kate Mitchell, treasurer; Frances Watson, recorder, and Lila Bell, critic. Cornelian—Ruth Viek, president; Sadie Hunt, vice-president; Kathleen Moseley, corresponding secretary; Mabel Rudisill, recording secretary; Hannah Mae Fleetwood, treasurer; Elizabeth Black, critic. Dikean—Vera Paschal, president; Lucretia Ashby, vice-president; Eva Lee Sink, corresponding secretary; Jinsie Underwood, critic, and Ruth Higgins, treasurer.

One of the prettiest events of commencement was the "Lavender and White Reunion" Luncheon which took place in the Y. W. C. A. Hut at the college at noon on Monday. Before the luncheon an informal meeting was held of all "lavender and white" representatives, and impromptu talks were made expressing the love and loyalty of each class for their college. Miss Coit spoke for the class of '96; Mrs. Speight, for 1900; Mrs. Claude Melver, 1904; Rena Lassiter Joyner, 1908; Annie Cherry, 1912; Annie Beam, 1916; Margaret Lawrence, 1920.

A several course luncheon was served by the sophomore class to the seniors and seventy-five "lavender and white" alumnae. The tables were decorated with wisteria and lavender sweet peas.

Class day exercises were held on the campus at seven o'clock. The class members, dressed in lavender and white organdies, entered through an aisle formed by the sophomores bearing the daisy chain. Mary Winn Abernathy presided over the exercises, installing the everlasting class officers as follows: Margaret Lawrence, president; Laura Howard, vice-president; Carrie Duffy Wooten, secretary; La Rue McLawhorn, treasurer; and Elsie Yarbrough, cheer leader. Ida Owens gave a toast to the college, and Julia Cherry read the senior class poem. The toast to the alumnae, given by Carrie Tabor, was responded to by Miss Laura Coit, alumnae president. Lela Wade gave a toast to the college mates, and the class prophecy was read by Kathryn Willis. Rachel Clifford read the last will and testament. One of the most interesting features of the will, was the gift of four hundred dollars to the alumnae for the furnishing of a lavender and white bedroom in the Alumnae

Building. The program closed with the singing of the farewell song of the class, with Miss Marguerite Jenkins as soloist, and the class in chorus.

Monday evening at eight-thirty o'clock, one of Mendelssohn's greatest oratorios, "St. Paul," was given in the auditorium of Students' Building. Mr. Patton, of New York did very effective work as bass soloist, as did Mr. Robert Quait in the tenor parts. The choral work was also excellently done, and the whole oratorio was rendered with much power and beauty.

The commencement program was ended Tuesday morning, June 1st, with the annual commencement address and awarding of diplomas to the eighty-six graduates, sixty-three of whom received A. B. degrees, fourteen B. S. degrees, and nine B. M. degrees. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. William F. Slocum, of New York. The candidates for degrees were presented by Dean W. C. Smith, and the diplomas awarded by Dr. Julius I. Foust, president.

Immediately after the graduating exercises, the senior class marched out between the daisy chain, while the junior class followed, to the Library Building. Here the two classes stood in silent groups while the senior colors, lavender and white, which had been floating over the Library all morning, were lowered and the junior class colors, blue and white, were raised. The graduates then removed their caps and gowns and placed them upon the juniors, who wore them to the last dinner together.

OUR COLLEGE IN THE FUTURE

Clara Byrd at the Alumnae Banquet

This backward look stirs within us thoughts of what our college yet may be. Last summer a group of North Carolinians were visiting in the State of California—that state which stands next to the top educationally, and which is famous in a multitude of ways.

We went one day into one of the great department stores in one of the large cities, and the young saleswoman displaying the various articles entered somewhat into conversation. "Yes, it is all wonderful," she said, "but have you been to Berkeley? That's our university. We have ten thousand students there. It's the best thing we've got to show you." That was our introduction to the "best thing" on the Pacific Coast, but not our last meeting with it.

Our landlady told us of the handsome outdoor theatre her town was building for its high school, modeled, she proudly explained, after the Greek theatre at Berkeley. We saw children in the playgrounds and parks, supervised we were told, by the girls from Berkeley. We met here and there women lawyers upon whose office walls hung diplomas signed at Berkeley. We heard teachers talking of the new courses they were working out in their schools under the instruction of Berkeley. We met housekeepers and newspaper men and newspaper women hailing from Berkeley. We met club women, and men and women of the various channels of industry who unconsciously owned their connection in some way with Berkeley. Once we asked a news reporter for some information, and he replied from force of habit, I suppose: "Let's just write up to Berkeley and find out—they'll know!"

Finally we went into one of the great ranching districts near the Mexican border. One day we sat on the porch of a ranch house and listened to a man standing out in the yard under a tree talk about the inoculation of seeds with fertilizer before they were planted, and such farm lore. Finally he said, "You see, I'm working under the laboratories at Berkeley." A woman who owned a ranch told us, "I sent samples of all the soils on my place to Berkeley and had them analyzed to find out what would grow best on each acre, and you just ought to see my ranch!" We heard a man say, "I've got a boy who wants to be a ranchman. I want him to be a good one, and so I think I'll send him up to Berkeley." And thus it continued.

We commenced to think, "What is this institution, maintained by a people for its people, that even strangers, turn where they may, cannot escape its embodied personality? How is it that it is weaving itself so closely into the life and activities of the state that to uproot the one would be to tear away the other?" We read the answer in the quoted words of one of its officials: "We are striving to make this institution a part of the very fabric of our state life—so inseparable from its existence that though the buildings and equipment may be situated in one city, the institution itself may be seen everywhere—in every blade of grass, in the daily life of our every man and woman, and in every work of beauty and usefulness."

And so, in thinking of our college in the future, I could not think in terms of numbers, or equipment, or appropriations, or curricula, for these will find their natural places. I could think only that what we wish our college to become, and what, even now, may I say, it is in process of becoming, is this: That through the agents for development and helpfulness we shall maintain here, this college shall become so intermingled, so interlaced, with the thoughts and interests and activities of us all that though its physical and material construction shall be here, on this hill, in this city of Greensboro, the college itself shall be found everywhere—in the hearts of our people; that there shall not be one home from the mountains to the sea which shall not be happier because it has embodied something from this source; that every phase of enterprise and endeavor—be it courtroom, hospital, school room, or any other—shall own its indebtedness to it; that it shall become the very pulse of the body politic—dependent one upon the other.

And I have thought of one way in addition to all the others in which we alumnae may help our college to hasten this process of becoming. We can say to our college, "We will unite ourselves with you more strongly than we have ever done before to cultivate a spirit, an atmosphere, so strongly liberal that every student who comes within these walls may be helped to discover what one thing she best can do, and then to do it.

A little boy was carefully taking apart a wonderful toy train and trying to explain to his little sister all about the different parts of the great invention. But the little sister was too busy playing with her doll to be interested in machinery. Finally he gave it up and said: "Well, I don't suppose it makes any difference, 'cause you're only going to be just a mother." That was the old idea—that there was only one field of service a woman might enter—the home; and that after she had entered it, it wasn't so highly honorable. Indeed, it has been only a moment ago, so irresponsible and so devoid of judgment was she supposed to be, that if a married woman committed an act of violence in the presence of her husband he was punished for it. The system may have had its advantages. But it is dead. Today there is hardly any occupation—from policeman to politician—which women have not already entered. And the occupation of homemaking is honored as it has never been honored before—so honored indeed that we have come to believe that the very best of training is none too good.

And so we would ask that the spirit of our college say to the students, "Listen to the still small voice within you. What thing do you most earnestly desire to become? What thing can you best do? That will help you to do." And if as she draws her arcs and circles and translates her languages, she sees visions of beautiful hats and dresses taking shape beneath her fingers, let no one dare to set his mere judgment against the divine urge within her heart and say, "The world of trade is a world of service, to be sure; but it is not for such as you." Or if she feels that as for her, she best can preach the gospel, do not say, "Why that's a man's job; let it alone." But, "Are these the things you best can do?" Or if some young woman especially endowed decides to make a home, let no one say, "What a pity! You ought to have a career!" Cannot our college be so sympathetic with the desire for expression on the part of its students that the children of the state can look to it and say, "Here we are, dear mother; take us, and teach us to discover and set free that force, that something which is locked within us; then send us back to make our State happier, and you greater."

But be all this as it may, I know that I voice the deep feeling of all those who call this college alma mater when I say that of all the developing agencies, of all the fostering institutions of this state, we do desire that this, our Mother, our College, shall become the greatest of them all.

MINUTES OF COMMENCEMENT MEETING

The Alumnae and Former Students' Association of the North Carolina College for Women met in the Adelpian Hall on the morning of May 29, 1920, at ten o'clock. Mrs. Dudley Carroll, president of the Association, called the meeting to order.

The secretary-treasurer read the names of those in good standing, and the president called for the payment of dues. A quorum was found present.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read and approved.

The class of 1920 was admitted by Miss Coit, and was received by vote of the Association. Mrs. Carroll welcomed the class in appropriate terms.

The secretary-treasurer, Ethel C. Bollinger, read her reports for the year ending May 22, 1920, as follows:

Secretary's Report

I wish to submit the following report, as whole-time secretary of the Alumnae and Former Students' Association of the North Carolina College for Women:

The work of the office this winter has been chiefly that of organization. In order to organize the alumnae and former students of our college, of which there are almost eight thousand, effort was first made, through the files and with the help of a county chairman in each county, to obtain lists of alumnae and former students in each county. This was only partly successful. The plan of organization which provided for four or five county meetings a year was then sent to each county chairman. This plan also provided for those committees which were necessary to carry on the work, and provided for at least one large get-together meeting, preferably a county dinner, when the plans for the Alumnae Building could be presented by someone from the college. The counties in which this plan of organization has been successfully attempted are Guilford, Washington, D. C., Mecklenburg, Davidson, Rowan, Richmond, Anson, Wake, New Hanover, Wilson, Halifax, Rockingham, while meetings have also been held in the following counties: Buncombe, Forsyth, Iredell, Durham, Sampson, Robeson, Edgecombe, Pitt, Pasquotank, Hoke, Stanley, Orange, Moore, Alleghany, and Jackson. Union County and Columbus County were also visited. The following counties may also be reported as interested in the work, although up to present date no meetings have been reported: Alexander, Cabarrus, Cleveland, Craven, Cumberland, Gaston, Lenoir, Randolph, Wayne and Johnston. This totals twenty-seven counties which can be reported organized, with eleven counties which will be organized more fully in the immediate future. Ten counties have reported that there are not enough interested alumnae and former students to organize. These can probably be combined with other adjoining counties. Ten meetings were cancelled on account of the influenza epidemic, and one on account of illness. Six of these meetings were later made up. The traveling incident to this work was done between February and the middle of May.

In addition to this work, regular office work was carried on four days out of the week, and in that time 9,725 alumnae circular letters were sent out, 500 circular post cards, 152 alumnae letters, general correspondence, 400 letters to take the annual vote of the association, and 415 letters in regard to the county organizations, making a total of 10,692 letters and 500 or more postal cards sent out from the alumnae office. The Alumnae News was also edited and published three times, with the able assistance of the associate editor and business manager.

During this time the following meetings and appointments were held: Board meetings, 2; committee meetings, 16; appointments and calls, 47. Many of these meetings were in regard to commencement. It might be of interest to note here the names of those whom we tried to obtain for our speaker this commencement: Dr. Alderman, Mr. E. C. Brooks, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Julia Lathrop, Col. Lumsden, Helen Taft, Dean Gildersleeve, President Elsie Uland, of the Philadelphia Orphan School, and Dr. Morgan, in charge of the Rural Service of the Red Cross at National Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Plans for our Alumnae Building have been drawn up and accepted by the Board of Trustees of the Alumnae Association, and the site for its erection, the Teague field, has been assured us. The status of the Alumnae Building Fund is as follows:

In notes	$2929.00
In cash	1094.13

Total .....$4,023.13

In closing my report I wish to thank most sincerely our college and those of our alumnae and former students, who have made what has been accomplished possible through their interest, loyalty and hearty cooperation. Without this nothing could have been done. I also wish to appeal to you for continued and further cooperation along the following lines:

1. Join your county organizations as soon as they are formed, whether you are at home or not.
2. Send in twice a year a post card with your address on it—fall and spring.
3. Send in news items through your county organizations.
4. Answer the office correspondence promptly, saying at once whether you can undertake the alumnae work in your county or not.
5. Join the State Alumnae Association, subscribe to the Alumnae News, and come back every year to see us.

Respectfully submitted,

Ethel C. Bollinger, Secretary.

A vote of thanks was extended the secretary for the year's work.

The president then called for the reports of the various committees. The Committee on Woman Dean, of which Mrs. Cone is chairman, had no report. The committee was continued.

The Committee to investigate the possibility of alumnae representation on the Board of Directors of the College, of which Miss Mary Moore was chairman, reported as follows: That a letter had been sent the board asking them to recommend to the next legislature that the charter be so changed as to give three additional members to the Board of Directors, these members to be alumnae of the college and nominated by the Alumnae Association. This request was approved by the board, and transmitted to the Legislative Committee with the request that this committee take whatever steps were necessary to carry out the wishes of the Alumnae Association.

The Academic Committee had no report. The Committee on a College Song had no report.

The Alumnae Building Committee reported that plans had been submitted to the Board of Trustees of the Alumnae and Former Students' Association, and that the board had accepted these plans with several alterations.

Mrs. Weatherspoon here gave her report as chairman of the Board of Trustees, in regard to the Alumnae Building, and pictures and a brief description of the building were shown.

At this point Dr. Foust addressed the Association, telling us a little of what the college is doing to keep pace with the demands of the present along lines of teacher training, public welfare and the

EDITORIAL

At the citizens' education conference held during the early part of May, at our College, a great deal was said about the present crisis in education, and the discussion was naturally narrowed down to the situation we are facing right here in our own state.

Our problem, it was found, is practically the same as that of every state. It is, in brief, the shortage of efficient teachers, and the subsequent employment of untrained teachers to fill their places, resulting in the closing of many schools, inadequate school houses, and the inevitable lowering of standards which accompany such conditions. Thus we have a situation the grave results of which are only partially foretold in a much lower standard of economic and industrial efficiency, of moral and spiritual development.

This state of affairs can be traced to several primal causes. Probably first has been the failure of the state to place the teaching profession upon a satisfactory financial basis. Teachers have been leaving the profession for the past five years at a rapid rate because their salaries have not been adequate to the high cost of living. They have entered other professions and taken up new lines of work which have proven more remunerative. Again—and a cause which is closely allied with the first named—teaching has not been recognized as "a worthy career, the opportunities and honors of which will not suffer by comparison with those that can be attained by successful workers in other fields." Teaching has been looked upon as a mere "fill-in", as something to be done by someone who cannot do anything else, and as an occupation that should be "side-stepped" wherever possible.

Dr. Frank Crane tells us to "Lay upon the conscience of every teacher the divinity of his employ. Give him the enthusiasm of his opportunity. Show him the beauty, the majesty of his calling, the marvel of his art, the proper pride of his craftsmanship."

The untrained teachers who have taken the place of the trained teachers are the product of the low standard of preparation for teachers. The schools for teacher training have been forced to lower their standards on account of the limited means with which they have to carry on their work, and these institutions have been too few to meet the demands for teachers.

Inadequate school buildings are the result of a system of insufficient taxation for buildings and maintenance, especially in our rural and village communities.

The state, as was shown at the conference, is awake to the charges against her, and a program of reconstruction which appears in these columns was drawn up at this meeting by some of her leading educators and citizens. Let us, as alumnae, not allow the work of this program to stop when it is published, however, but bend every effort toward helping to bring the new era in education which it will make possible for our state, if carried out.

Everywhere we are seeing the slogan, "Save the Children for America," and everywhere we see tendencies toward a universal desire for cleaner living and better health conditions. Dr. L. B. McBrayer, of Sanatorium, N. C., will be glad to furnish particulars in regard to the modern health crusade. A few simple health rules have been published in this connection and are timely in their suggestiveness. It might be well to post them in every school room:

Health Rules of the Modern Health Crusaders

1. Keep windows open or stay outdoors when you sleep, play, work or study. Breathe fresh air always and through your nose. Take ten deep breaths every day.
2. Eat wholesome food, including fruit and vegetables, and chew it thoroughly. Avoid greasy fried food, soggy breads, heavy pie and cake. Eat little candy; none that is impure. Drink plenty of pure water and use your own cup. Drink no tea nor coffee. Never take beer, wine or other alcoholic drinks or soft drinks containing injurious drugs. Do not smoke or use tobacco in any form.
3. Make sure that everything that you put into your mouth is clean. Wash your hands always before eating or handling food. Wash your ears and neck as well as your face and clean your finger nails every day. Bathe your whole body twice a week at least and shampoo often. Brush your teeth thoroughly twice every day, after breakfast and supper. Have all cavities in your teeth filled. Consult a dentist twice a year.
4. Play and exercise every day in the open air. Sit and stand up straight. Have a regular time every day for attending to toilet and each need of your body. Whenever you cough or sneeze, turn your head aside and cover your mouth with your handkerchief. If you must spit, spit only where it will be removed before person or fly could touch it. Have a complete medical examination each year.
5. Get a long night's sleep. Get up smiling. Keep your clothes neat. Brush your shoes before going to school. Keep your mind clean and cheerful. Be helpful to others.

SUMMER MEETINGS

Why not have your summer alumnae meetings in the form of a picnic? It is only fair for the town people to go out and meet those members who live in the country. Make your arrangements early and try to have an alumnae picnic in every county this summer, here planning for your fall work for the Alumnae Building.

training of women for citizenship. He stated that they were running as fast as we could to keep pace, but even then we were five or six hundred behind in meeting the demands of the young women of the state. He asked the alumnae to carry with them a message to the people of the state to build a commonwealth that will play its part.

The Auditing Committee reported that they had examined the treasurer's report and found it correct.

The secretary reported that the name of the Alumnae Association had been officially changed to "The Alumnae and Former Students' Association of the North Carolina College for Women, Inc." She also reported that a letter had been sent the Board of Directors of the College, in regard to the naming of the new dormitory "The Anna Howard Shaw Building," but that no reply had been received.

The result of the work of the Nominating Committee, Ruth Fitzgerald, chairman, Naomi Neal, and Fannie Starr Mitchell, in taking the ballot by mail, was as follows: For president, Laura H. Coit.

There was no majority for the office of vice-president, the vote standing, Minnie Jamison, 49; Mildred Harrington, 33; Mrs. R. M. Williams, 30; Annie Cherry, 18.

Board members for three years: Mrs. Julius Cone and Jane Summerell (no majority for two); Eleanor Watson, 63; Hattie Berry, 48.

Auditing committee: Mary Tennent, Joy Briggs, Martha Winfield.

A discussion followed this report as to how we should elect the vice-president and two board members, since they had no majority. It was moved and seconded that we amend the by-laws of our constitution to the effect that we use the plurality method to elect our officers. This motion was deemed unwise and was not carried. A motion was then made and carried that we complete the vote by allowing those members present who had not voted to do so by rising. The final result of the election was as follows, and board members for one and two years are also given below:

For president, Laura H. Coit.

For vice-president, Minnie L. Jamison.

Board members for three years, Mrs. Julius Cone, Jane Summerell, Eleanor Watson.

Board members for two years, Mrs. Lizzie Weatherspoon, Miss Mary Robinson, Mrs. Mamie B. Gant.

Board members for one year, Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, Mrs. Paul McCain, Mrs. Tempe Parker Harris.

Under general discussion Misses Marjorie Craig and Ruth Kernodle raised the question of the correct name of the college, and of the standing of the college as an accredited college. Miss Moore answered their questions, and said that she thought that we had now met the requirements of an accredited college. Miss Spier said that it was fundamentally a question of the educational situation in our state, and that the alumnae could be of great help here. Mrs. Carroll asked Miss Kernodle, Miss Moore, and Miss Womble to serve as a committee for further investigation along this line.

This discussion brought up the subject of the recent educational conference, and it was moved and carried that we endorse and adopt the program of the citizens' conference as one of the pieces of work which our county alumnae organizations can carry out. These programs will be sent to all county organizations.

Mrs. McCain raised the question of membership in the county associations. It was shown that all graduates and former students are eligible to membership.

Ione Mehane, representing the class of 1919, offered several valuable suggestions for raising funds for the Alumnae Building. Among these were the county pageant, plays and dinners at the county fairs, concerts, selling gasoline, cream suppers, etc. She also suggested that since it was so difficult to get the country people in for the city meetings, a smaller community organization might be formed, and then have one or two large community meetings a year. All of these suggestions were received with thanks.

Miss Bettie Aiken Land suggested that we extend to Miss Spier a vote of thanks for the active part she took in having rural education introduced into the Department of Education of our college.

Miss Harriet Elliott, of our college faculty, made an announcement in regard to the school of citizenship which is to be held here this summer. She urged us to cooperate in making this first conference a success.

Marie Bonitz, one of the students, made an announcement in regard to Park Night, explaining its significance, and extending an invitation to all to attend.

Miss Spier moved that we send Miss Gertrude Mendenhall, Miss Viola Boddie and Miss Melville Fort messages of regret that they could not be with us this commencement. A note should also be sent Mrs. McIver expressing our regret that she could not be at our meeting. The motion was carried and the secretary instructed to do this.

Miss Annie Cherry thanked the class of 1919 for ten strong teachers in Halifax County, and appealed for more like them. She also brought greetings from the Halifax County alumnae organization. She also suggested that we have a big "get together" at the Teachers' Assembly next year.

The president then appointed the following committees:

1. Teachers' Assembly: Mrs. J. S. Williams, chairman, Bessie Moody, Frances Suttle.

2. Program Committee for commencement: Mary B. Mitchell and Mary Tenant.

3. Nominating Committee: Mrs. A. S. Wirth, Miss Ruth Fitzgerald, Gretchen Taylor.

4. Founder's Day: Miss Jane Summerell, Mrs. R. M. Williams, Marguerite Galloway.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Ethel C. Bollinger, Secretary.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Eugene Gudger was a very welcome visitor to the college during the commencement season. Dr. Gudger is returning to New York to continue his work in editing a bibliography of fishes. The Daily News carries the following item concerning his work:

Dr. E. W. Gudger has resigned as professor of biology at the North Carolina Women's College, after an incumbency of 14 years. A year ago Dr. Gudger obtained a leave of absence, now terminated, and which he has employed in editing a bibliography of fishes—his special field of sci-

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF TWENTY-FIVE

Appointed at the Educational Conference, May 4-5

The undersigned committee was appointed by Governor Thomas W. Bickett at the Citizens' Conference on Education held at the North Carolina College for Women on May 4th and 5th, 1920, for the purpose of making a condensed report of the program enunciated by that conference. The committee, basing its conclusions upon the reports submitted by the four sections of the conference (Rural School, Village School, City School and Higher Education) and having in mind the present educational equipment of the State of North Carolina, is firmly convinced that the following is fundamental for the proper education of the people of a great state:

1. The school system of North Carolina should be organized on the basis of the county as a unit of taxation and administration. The state should continue to aid the weaker counties by making the educational opportunities of all children of the state as nearly equal as possible. The local school unit should be made as large as possible by consolidation with transportation of children to the school where necessary.

2. Adequate facilities for the training of teachers should be supplied as quickly as possible by the establishment of additional training schools. The program outlined by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for training teachers at summer normal schools, at summer sessions maintained by state institutions and departments of education attached to high schools should be adopted until adequate facilities for the training of teachers can be provided.

3. The economic independence of the public school teachers of the state should be assured by the payment of salaries, not merely sufficient for living expenses, but sufficient for professional training and culture.

4. The public school teachers of the state should be employed for the full-year period with salaries on the twelve-month basis. When teachers are thus employed the problems of illiteracy, length of school terms, et cetera, will be readily solved.

5. The community should provide comfortable homes for its teachers.

6. The courses of study in the public schools should be adapted to the needs of the community and the demands of modern life.

7. The health of school children should be properly safeguarded; every child should have a thorough physical examination twice each year and this should be supplemented by physical education.

8. The public school should, wherever feasible, be utilized as the educational, social, and recreational center of the community.

9. An efficient and well-trained man or woman should be at the head of the school system of each county, and this official should be supplied with assistants for school supervision as the need arises.

10. The State of North Carolina faces a real emergency in higher education. The institutions of higher learning are utterly inadequate to meet the demands of the young men and young women who ask for admission. Provision for enlarging and strengthening all of the institutions of higher learning in the state should be made at once.

entific work—for the department of ichthyology of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. To this bibliography, a monumental task which catalogues in systematic manner with cross indices the world's entire scientific literature on fishes, he had devoted the two previous summers. He will proceed with it.

In lines of research and laboratory work on which he has specialized Dr. Gudger is himself a foremost authority in ichthyology, publishing steadily from time to time papers both of a strictly scientific and of a popular nature. He has been in Greensboro since Saturday attending the commencement exercises at the college, returning last night to New York.

Mr. E. J. Forney and family expect to leave in a few weeks for their summer home in Ashe County.

Miss Magnhilde Gullander and Miss Frances Womble are spending the summer in Bristol, South Dakota.

Miss Elva Barrow is recuperating from an operation at her home in Ferrum, Va. Later she expects to attend the University of Chicago.

Misses Mary Petty and Harriet Elliott expect to spend the latter part of the summer in England. Miss Petty is going in the interest of the Friends Conference. Miss Elliott expects to study the condition of women in industry in England.

Miss Ruth Fitzgerald, Miss Martha Winfield and Mrs. Lizzie Weatherspoon expect to attend summer school at Columbia this summer.

Miss Melville Fort paid a recent very enjoyable visit to the college.

Misses Naomi Neal and Mary L. Sherrill are expecting to attend the University of Chicago this summer.
